Nancy J. Griswold Chief Administrative Law Judge Office of Medicare Hearings and Appeals Department of Health & Human Services 1700 N. Moore Street Suite 1800 Arlington, VA 22209

Dear Chief Administrative Law Judge Griswold:

On behalf of the undersigned organizations, we write to you to express serious concern about the backlog of Medicare appeals. We are particularly troubled by the recent notice by the Office of Medicare Hearings and Appeals (OMHA) that assignment of requests for Administrative Law Judge (ALJ) hearings may be delayed for up to 28 months. We are also discouraged that OMHA still predicts that, even after this delay, post-assignment hearing wait times are likely to continue to exceed six months. While we understand and appreciate that OMHA has convened a forum today to discuss the backlog of Medicare appeals, we are concerned that this forum alone will not sufficiently address the multitude of issues that patients and physicians face when the Medicare appeals process is not working properly. We therefore strongly urge OMHA to develop a comprehensive solution to the Medicare appeal backlog problem so that appealed cases may be assigned and adjudicated without delay.

As you are aware, Medicare audit contractors are often erroneous in their overpayment determinations. In particular, the Recovery Auditors, or RACs, have a very poor accuracy record. The most recent Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (CMS) RAC report to Congress stated that 43.6 percent of provider-appealed RAC determinations are overturned. Because the Medicare contractors often get it wrong, the Medicare appeals process is of utmost importance. A physician who undergoes a RAC audit and believes that the RAC has erroneously recouped a payment has but one recourse: they may file an appeal of the RAC determination through the Medicare appeals process. Many of these cases proceed all the way to the ALJ level and are overturned. By delaying the assignment of cases to ALJs by more than two years, OMHA is denying due process which is predicated on the timely disposition of disputes for physicians and other providers who experience erroneous determinations by Medicare contractors.

The proposal to further delay processing appeals is the most recent example of the barriers to obtaining payment for the delivery of medically necessary and reasonable services to Medicare beneficiaries. Over the course of years, physicians have increasingly assumed the cost of producing medical records (often repeatedly at various levels of appeal), meeting exacting deadlines, and filing a succession of appeals. The foregoing does not capture the additional opportunity cost associated with the diversion of physician and staff hours from delivering direct medical care to patients. The OMHA appeals process is but one appeals process that physicians and patients must navigate. We recommend that OMHA and the Office of the Secretary within the U.S. Department of Health & Human Services (HHS) evaluate the need for expedient appeals processes across the health programs administered by HHS, including Medicare, Medicare Advantage, and the Medicare Prescription Drug benefit. The numerous appeals requirements, actual costs of filing appeals, and often lengthy delays undermine the ability of physicians to deliver patient-centered care.

As a necessary first step, we strongly urge you to remedy the OMHA backlog immediately. With the numerous new regulatory requirements that physicians are facing today, physicians do not have the resources to navigate an interminable appeals process. We are happy to work with you as you address these issues.

Sincerely,
